

Adapta Resourcing

project and change management for the sector

All projects carry risk – especially those involving information systems and technology.

Statistically, the failure rate is huge, but success has very little to do with an organisation's size, the complexity of the change or the legal thoroughness of the various contracts involved.

While all of those factors play their part, the most common cause of failure is the difficulty of resourcing – and, most of all, the difficulty of project and change management resourcing.

When it comes to implementation, even the best-funded organisations struggle to secure the right project resources. Charities, membership bodies and others in the sector face an especially difficult challenge, given the expectation that funding, subscriptions and support will always be focused on the strategic aims and front-line objectives of the organisation. As a result, managers and staff often find themselves seconded into unfamiliar areas, doing their best and often working unsupported.

Adapta Resourcing is designed to be the difference between success and failure, taking our help to the next level, by providing programme, project and change managers to work on-site with our clients on either short- or long-term engagements.

Trained and equipped by the partners and senior consultants at Adapta, our pool of experienced and accredited associates are ready to take up the reins on your project at short notice. We only work with organisations in the not-for-profit sector and so we know in advance the kinds of issues our project and change managers will face – that means we can prepare them for your challenges before they get started, so that they can hit the ground running and quickly make the difference you need.

All our project and change managers are backed by the team at Adapta, which means they have access to our project office library of project materials, built up over the years. More importantly, they – and you – get the benefit of Adapta's knowledge and experience at every point in the process. In effect, we provide the wide range of skills and abilities you need but concentrated through your own resource on site for as long as you need it.

Over the years, Adapta Consulting has helped the broadest range of organisations in the sector through the process of introducing change. We number qualified practitioners in PRINCE2, MSP (Managing successful programmes) and Agile among our teams. More importantly, we draw on a combined total of more than 200 years' experience of systems implementation, working with charities, membership bodies and others at every level.

"Unlike many consultants, Adapta won't tell you what you expect to hear. They will be very honest and challenging and, even if some of what they say is uncomfortable to hear, it means you end up getting better advice."

About Adapta Consulting

Adapta Resourcing is a specialist service provided by Adapta Consulting.

At Adapta, we work exclusively with charities, membership bodies, grant-making trusts, and others in the not-for-profit sector. Our team of consultants provide support at every stage of programme, project and change management, drawing on many years' experience to help you plan ahead, avoid pitfalls and achieve success.

Every organisation we work with is different, but our broad and deep experience means that we can adapt quickly to the culture, systems and structures of our clients while also providing independent guidance and management to anticipate and mitigate what we know are the likely risks.
